Madame Yale's HAIR TONIC

Ladies and Gentlemen.—It has gone on record that Madame Yale's Excelsior Hair Tonic is the first and only remedy known to chemical science to be a genuine hair specific. It has a affinity for the human hair for nourishing and invigorating its entire structure. It is antiseptic in character, as well as stimulating; its action upon the scalp and hair is truly wonderful, insomuch as it has never been known in a single instance to fail to cure scalp diseases and to create a luxuriant growth of healthy, beautiful hair. It stops the falling within twenty-four hours and brings back the natural color to gray hair in nearly every instance. It is not a dye; it is not sticky or greasy; on the contrary it makes the hair soft, youthful, beautiful and glossy; keeps it in curl. It is a perfect hair dressing, and can be used by ladies, gentlemen or children as a daily toilet requisite. Its influence is delightfully soothing. All Dealers sell it, $1 per bottle. Mail order may be sent direct to the manufacturer, MADAME YALE, 189 Michigan Blvd., Chicago.

GOOD MAN GONE.

Former Governor Wolcott Dies In Boston.

He Had Been Ill With Typhoid Fever For Several Weeks.

The Funeral Services Will Be In Trinity Church On Monday Forenoon.

Boston, Dec. 21.—Former Governor of Massachusetts Roger Wolcott died at his residence in Commonwealth avenue this afternoon, between 3:30 and 3:40 o'clock. He had been ill with typhoid fever for several weeks, but the reports from his bedside indicated nothing alarming in his condition until the latter part of last week, when new and dangerous complications set in. Since then the bulletins issued by his physicians have been hopeful, though not reassuring. Dr. Putnam, who has been attending Mr. Wolcott, said tonight that death resulted from extreme weakness brought about by the duration of the disease. The family were at the bedside when the end came. Mr. Wolcott had been in a lethargic state for the last twenty-four hours and although his mind was probably clear, it had not been alert and he had uttered no words. He must have known that death was near, but he showed no concern for the future. The disease was probably contracted either on ship-board, while he was returning from his trip abroad, or just after landing in New York. The funeral will be held on Monday forenoon at eleven o'clock, in Trinity church, Oopley square, and will be extremely simple. The body will not lie in state, and there will be no eulogy.

Roger Wolcott was a descendant of the Roger Wolcott who was second in command in the expedition of Sir William Pepperrell against Cape Breton in 1745, which resulted in the capture of Louisbourg. Another ancestor was Oliver Wolcott, one of the signers of the Declaration of Independence. Both of these Wolcotts were governors of Connecticut. One of his ancestors, on his mother's side, was active and prominent during the Revolutionary period as a member of the Charlestown committee of safety, and another took part in the Boston tea party.

Roger Wolcott was educated in Boston private schools and at Harvard university, from which he graduated in the class of 1870. In college he ranked high, and was the choice of his classmates for orator. He was graduated from Harvard Law school in 1874 and was admitted to the Suffolk bar in the same year. He practiced but little, however, his time having been largely occupied by his duties as trustee of various estates and in the management of financial matters.

Governor Wolcott's public career began in 1877, as a member of the Boston common council, in which he served three years. Then he was elected to the lower house of the legislature, where he served from 1882 to 1884, taking a position among the leaders and winning distinction as a hard and trust worthy worker.

He was elected lieutenant governor in 1893, '94 and '95, and upon the death of Governor Greenhalge became acting governor in 1896. In 1897 he was elected governor and in 1898 he was re-elected.

Mr. Wolcott was always a republican, but in the campaign of 1884 he opposed his party's candidate for the presidency and voted for Grover Cleveland. He belonged to a number of reform organizations, among others the Boston Citizens' association and the Civil Service Reform association. He was a trustee of the Massachusetts General hospital and an overseer of Harvard university, and a member of many social clubs.

Shortly after the resignation of Gen. William F. Draper as ambassador to Italy, in 1899, President McKinley tendered the post to Mr. Wolcott. The offer was declined on account of the pressure of private business affairs. On Sept. 21, 1874, Mr. Wolcott was married to Miss Edith Prescott, granddaughter of William H. Prescott, the historian, and great grand-daughter of Col. William Prescott, who commanded the provincials at the battle of Bunker Hill. They have four sons and one daughter now living.

THE CHINESE ISSUE.

Severe Punishment Demanded.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—It is learned that the agreement of the foreign ministers in Peking on conditions preliminary to the closing up of negotiations for peace embody a demand that the severest punishment in the power of the Chinese government be inflicted on the high officials who are believed to be responsible for the Boxer outrage. The demand for a death penalty was stricken from the note and "severest punishment possible" inserted.

Coming To Peking.

BERLIN, Dec. 21.—A message from Tien Tsai to the Frankfurter Zeitung says Prince Ching's interpreter asserts that the emperor Kwang Su, accompanied by the empress dowager, left Sian-fu on December 19th, for Peking.

HAZING NOT BRUTAL.

WEST POINT, Dec. 21.—The court of inquiry that has been having two sessions here daily, for the purpose of ferreting out the facts concerning the Booz case of alleged cruel hazing, adduced nothing today showing that the treatment of young Booz by his fellow cadets at the military academy was brutal. The trend of the testimony served to indicate that neither Booz nor Breth had the mental capacity requisite for the successful prosecution of the academy course of study and training.

IN CONGRESS.

WASHINGTON, D. C. 21.—The house, after after being in session only twenty five minutes, adjourned today out of respect to the memory of Representative Wise of Virginia, who died at his home in that state early this morning. The customary resolutions were passed and a delegation of seventeen members was appointed to attend the funeral. Under the concurrent resolution adopted several days ago, adjournment was taken until January third next.

NOT NEEDED LONGER.

LONDON, Dec. 21.—The American hospital ship Maine has arrived at Southampton, with 103 sick men on board. The government, after consultation with the military and naval authorities in China, has decided that the Maine will not be needed in the service longer, so the vessel will be turned over by the ladies' committee to her owner.

CHRISTMAS AT SUEZ.

PORT SAID, Dec. 21.—The United States first class battleship Kentucky entered Suez canal this morning. She will stop at Suez until after Christmas and proceed, on December 26th, for Colombo and Manila.

STRIKE CALLED OFF.

HOUSTON, Tex., Dec. 21.—The strike of the telegraphers on the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe railroad was declared off tonight.

WEATHER INDICATIONS.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Forecast for New England: Fair Saturday and Sunday, warmer Sunday, diminishing north winds.

Every Exertion a Task

Every Care a Burden

There is failure of the strength to do and the power to endure; there is weakness "all over" that is persistent and constant.

The vital functions are impaired, food does not nourish, and the whole system is run down.

A medicine that strengthens the stomach, perfects digestion, invigorates and tones is needed.

What Hood's Sarsaparilla did for Mrs. L. B. Garland, Shady, Tenn., it has done for others. She took it when she was all run down—with out appetite, losing flesh, and unable to do her work. It restored her appetite, increased her weight, and made her well and strong. This is her own unsolicited statement.

Hood's Sarsaparilla

Promises to cure and keeps the promise. The earlier treatment is begun the better—begin it today.

FROM SOUTH AFRICA.

Simply Reprimanded.

LONDON, Dec. 22, 2:00 A. M.—As the outcome of certain statements made during the session of parliament just ended, and reiterated afterward, to the effect that some of the colonial troops in South Africa had refused to fight longer, the war office tonight made public the following despatch from General Kitchener: "A number of men belonging to two of the South African corps refused to march on one occasion, owing to some mistake to carry out their discharge at the expiration of term of enlistment. Lord Roberts, on the ground that they had a grievance, overlooked the matter, simply reprimanding them. The men have since done good work and the report is utterly unfounded that they mutinied or that force was used against them."

GRANITE CUTTERS UNION.

The local branch of the Granite Cutters' union was reorganized on Friday evening, at a special meeting in G. A. R. hall on Daniel street. A membership of twenty-five was present, some others being detained elsewhere by unavoidable circumstances.

Two members were initiated, and a great deal of interest was shown in the matter of making the organization strong and effective.

The following officers were elected: President, William B. Doherty. Vice president, George Little. Corresponding and Financial secretary, Arthur Kenniston. Treasurer, John Robinson. Auditing committee, Warren Rowe, Richard Seville and J. Gowan. Grievance committee, George Little, Arthur Kenniston and Martin Cowan. Shop Steward, Martin Cowan.

The prospects are that the aims and principles of the union, (which is one of the most powerful of all in this country today) will be given a vigorous impetus locally this winter.

AT THE NAVY YARD.

The yard force will be paid today. It will cost $800,000 to rebuild the Mercedes.

The plans for the railroad have been completed.

Many of the clerks will pass Christmas out of town.

Master Shipfitter W. F. Brown goes to Philadelphia today.

Pilot Robert Billings of the tug Nezine has returned to duty.

Woods Bros., are hauling some heavy machinery over to the yard.

A forty foot steam outter is being loaded for shipment to Newport.

Make some out of town friend happy by sending them a year's subscription to the Herald.

Rear Admiral B. J. Cromwell, U. S. N., has gone to Washington on a visit and Captain P. F. Harrington is acting as commandant.

"BOB" DONNELLY HONORED.

The Portsmouth friends of "Bob" Donnelly, who formerly held the position of foreman plumber at this navy yard, and is now similarly situated at the Charlestown station, are pleased to learn that he was the recipient, on Wednesday evening, the 19th inst., of a gold watch and chain, the gift of his fellow workmen. They surprised him at his home on Tremont street, Charlestown, and made him the presentation. Mr. Donnelly reciprocated by making the evening very pleasant for them, until a late hour.

AT THE KINDERGARTENS.

Christmas tree exercises took place at the Cabot street, Farragut, Haven and Spaulding schools, on Friday forenoon. They were largely attended by the parents and friends of the little pupils. The trees were weighted with a lot of nice gifts and were decorated very prettily.

SECOND LADIES' NIGHT.

The second in the Warwick club's series of ladies' nights took place on Friday evening, and it was a brilliant assemblage that made the spacious club quarters merry until quite late. Cards were played and a collation was served.

POLICE NEWS.

There were several lodgers at the station on Friday night.

A grocer has made a Christmas present of a box of cigars to the department.

Officer Holbrook's ailing knee will prevent him from returning to his beat for some time.

Officer Burns' improvement is so steady now that his recovery will probably be much quicker than has been expected.

FATE OF DREYFUS' FOES

Major Cuignet Is Now Under Arrest In Paris.

KILLED COL. SCHNEIDER IN DUEL.

Officer With Unenviable Record Antagonizes Minister of War—Count Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy Living In Direct Detention.

Paris, Dec. 21.—General Andre, minister of war, summoned Major Cuignet yesterday afternoon and asked for an explanation of his conduct in first disclosing to a deputy, M. Lasie, a confidential document which he obtained knowledge of during his service at the secret intelligence office of the war department and then in writing directly to the president of the council, M. Waldeck-Rousseau, to accuse M. Delcasse of falsehood, thereby transgressing the rules which require all officers of the French army to forward all letters or communications through the proper hierarchical channels.

Major Cuignet refused to make any explanation, and the minister of war thereupon ordered him to return to his home and await orders there. A few minutes later an officer attached to the military government of Paris called upon Major Cuignet at his residence and informed him that he had been ordered to surrender himself at the fort of Mont Valerien before 8 o'clock.

Major Cuignet obeyed and was lodged in one of the cells used for the detention of officers placed under arrest in Paris, probably the very one in which Major Henry was imprisoned on the night of Aug. 30, 1898, and in which he cut his throat with a razor not many hours afterward.

This arrest is all the more sensational as it follows right upon the heels of the passing of the amnesty bill which it was fondly hoped would remove most of the elements of factional bitterness that remain as a legacy of the Dreyfus case.

Major Cuignet's History. Major Cuignet was removed from active service in June, 1898, for much the same offense as the one with which he is now charged, that of communicating to an anti-Dreyfus paper, the Figaro, confidential information exchanged between the ministers of war and foreign affairs respecting this same Panizzardi dispatch. Nevertheless, at the second court martial upon Dreyfus, held at Rennes, he was cited as a witness for the prosecution, and his evidence betrayed the emulated, broken down prisoner of the Isle du Diabie into one of his rare moments of emotion.

Major Cuignet was described by Marcel Prevost as the acolyte and, as it were, the pupil of General Roget, who after the rout which General Mercier suffered took command of the military party and fought to the bitter end against the rehabilitation of the prisoner. He was careless of consequences. He made charges and implications against foreign diplomats which were regarded as confidential. He evoked remonstrance from Major Carrier, the prosecuting officer of the court martial. He coolly accused the Austrian military attaché, Schneider, of lying and suggested that the French government itself was fathering the lie.

Colonel Schneider had telegraphed to the court martial declaring that a certain document attributed to him by the prosecution was a forgery.

Major Cuignet suggested that the dispatch was dated Enns, where other telegrams had been fabricated, the reference being to the famous dispatches by his marquis which precipitated the Franco-Prussian war. Three or four months later, in October, 1899, it was reported that Colonel Schneider and Major Cuignet fought a duel in Switzerland. The former was wounded and died of it.

Estherhazy In Direct Detention. Major Count Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy, who figured so prominently in the Dreyfus case and who was denounced by Matthew Dreyfus as being the writer of the famous bordereau which brought about the two convictions of Captain Alfred Dreyfus on the charge of treason, has sunk into utter misery.

His divorced wife's suit against her mother, the Marquise de Beaucourt, for an allowance on the ground that she is in profound distress and unable to support or educate her young daughters, has brought forth the following letter, written by the major to his wife Nov. 1, and dated from London:

"I have been unable to write to my children recently, not having the money to buy a postage stamp. I am at the last extremity of strength, courage and resources. I had not eaten for two days and this morning in the kitchen I have no clothes, am shivering with cold and am compelled to warm myself by entering churches and museums. Every one will say this is a confession of guilt, but you can say I am killing myself because, after having struggled to the utmost of my courage, my voice is stifled by my persecutors. Without bread, home or clothing I shall die of privations of all kinds unless a reward is put at my disposal in good order. Kiss my children. Tell them I adore them, and that a light of fatality has precipitated me into an abyss. If I die the victim of human cowardice, I never committed the crime whereof I am accused by scoundrels in order to save themselves."

Stolen Diamonds Recovered. Albany, Dec. 21.—One of the most sensational robberies of the decade has come to light in the recovery of the $1,000 diamond cross stolen from the residence of Mrs. Frances Lintner, widow of Joseph Albert Lintner, on Nov. 15 last. The cross and other jewelry stolen were recovered by Pinkerton detectives, and the crime was fixed on Miss Lucia Johnson, who comes from the state of Alabama and who was a guest at the residence of Mrs. Lintner. No charge will be pressed against Miss Johnson on account of the supposed social standing of her family, and although she went away from the city escorted by two detectives, she was not under arrest on a warrant charging her with the crime.

Money Panic In Mexico. El Paso, Tex., Dec. 21.—While the press of Mexico is noncommittal it is believed a serious money panic is now on there. George W. Hilsinger, manager for the El Paso and Juarez branch of the Banco Miner and the strongest bank in the City of Mexico and Chihuahua, stated yesterday that the panic was becoming serious and that the government was about to let out the silver reserve, amounting to nearly $40,000,000, to relieve the situation.

FILIPINOS KILLED.

American Soldiers Keeping Up an Active Campaign.

Manila, Dec. 21.—Every mountain trail in General Young's district north of the Abra river and between the coast and the American scouts this month. A similar movement has taken place in the provinces of Union, Benguet, Lepanto and that part of South Ilocos which lies south of the Abra river. Fifteen insurgents have been killed and more than 100 captured. The villages are always abandoned before the arrival of the Americans, but many buildings that have been used as barracks have been destroyed.

The leaders of the projected Autonomy party have again visited the Philippine commission, and the platform proposed was discussed privately and in an informal way. The commissioners advise the elimination of a few minor features. Personally they approve the movement as a forward step in the direction of the ultimate measure of self government which the commission has already been instructed to endeavor to bring about.

The plan of the party is to form United States territories involving candidature for ultimate statehood. The platform declares in favor of a senate and a house of representatives elected from the districts of the archipelago according to population. In preparing a bill of rights the United States constitution is utilized, with the exception of the feature of trial by jury.

According to the plan the governor general appointed by the president would have power of veto except in cases of a two-thirds vote of the legislature. The legislature would choose five delegates to the United States congress.

The platform opposes the sale of the Philippines without the consent of the legislature. It contains little regarding the future of the islands in the main it repeats the features of the United States constitution.

The most influential and honorable natives are identified with the movement.

THE BOOZ INQUIRY.

Examination of His Fellow Cadets Continues.

West Point, Dec. 21.—The United States army commission, which is investigating the charges of brutal hazing made in connection with the death of Oscar L. Booz, formerly cadet here, held yesterday the most interesting of any of the five West Point sessions. The statement of every cadet examined was in its general substance the same. They all solemnly made oath that Booz was hazed no more than other members of his class.

Some witnesses testified that he was hazed less than his classmates on account of what the cadets characterized as his lack of courage in a fight he had with another cadet and in which, according to cadet ethics, he was the offending party. This was repeated over and over again by 48 of Booz's classmates. In addition to that there was unanimous testimony that an instance of a cadet having tobacco or any other article put into his mouth by force was never heard of, although practically all the cadets testified that they had been ordered to take from one to five drops of the pepper sauce, similar to tabasco, with which the cadet mess table is supplied, and that they had obeyed the order and had never suffered the slightest ill effects in consequence.

The case of Cadet Breth also was taken up by the commission. The testimony was similar to that in the Booz case.

President Saxe's Soldier's Life.

Washington, Dec. 21.—(Corporal Samuel A. Nelson, Company F, Twenty-fifth infantry, was convicted by court martial of murder committed in the Philippine Islands and was sentenced to be executed by hanging. The president has commuted the sentence to imprisonment for life at hard labor in the United States penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.)

DR. WISE DISMISSED.

President New York State Lunacy Commission Guilty of Malfeasance.

Albany, Dec. 21.—Governor Roosevelt announced last evening that he had dismissed from office Dr. Peter M. Wise, president of the state commission in lunacy, on the charges preferred of malfeasance in office. The governor sets forth his reasons for Wise's removal in the following memorandum:

"Dr. Wise was guilty of gross impropriety in directly or indirectly, by suggestion or otherwise, soliciting subscription to the Copper Hill Mining company, of which he was president, from his official subordinates of both sexes, including superintendents, doctors, stewards and in at least two cases the heads of private asylums which are under the supervision of the state commission in lunacy. Such conduct would be improper in any public officer. It is peculiarly improper in the case of the head of the state commission in lunacy. This commission has extraordinary power, controls vast sums of money and deals with a peculiarly helpless class of people, so it calls for a particularly high type of official rectitude."

Two Treatments.

In Denmark when a man is found too drunk to find his own house he is placed in a cab, taken to the police station, examined by the doctor, detained till sober and then dispatched to his home in another cab, and the bill for the doctor, the cab and the police attendance has to be paid by the publican who served the belligerent drunkard with his last drink. In Turkey it is the drunkard who is punished. The punishment for the first offense is the bastinado, the second and third offenses are also followed by chastisement, but after the third offense the offender becomes "privileged" and is entitled to be carefully taken home by a policeman.—New York Tribune.

A Puzzle In Horticulture.

Little Chris—Daddy, what makes onions rot? Daddy—Seeds, of course. Little Chris—Then what makes seeds rot? Daddy—Onions. Little Chris (triumphantly)—Then why don't we feed the onion on onions? (Discomfited and retreat of Daddy.)—(London Punch).

There is considerable risk incurred in shooting vicious horses. To remove this risk an Australian has invented a sort of wooden cage, the sides and top of which are padded. The horse is led in, the door is fastened, and the cage is then turned completely upside down, the animal resting on its back, with its feet up.

If London streets were put end to end, they would reach to St. Petersburg.

THE TREATY RATIFIED.

Vote In Senate Fifty-five to Eighteen.

FORAKER AMENDMENTS ADOPTED.

All Other Amendments Voted Down. Measure as Passed Prohibits Fortifications—Consent of Other Nations Than England Not to Be Asked.

Washington, Dec. 21.—After spending the greater part of the past fortnight in considering the Hay-Panamafoe treaty for the modification of the Clayton-Bulwer convention of 1850 the senate yesterday consumed only one hour and ten minutes in amending it and ratifying it as amended. During this time there were six roll calls and several viva voce votes. The first five of the roll calls were on amendments offered by individual senators and the last one on the resolution to ratify the treaty as amended. All the amendments except those offered by Senator Foraker and reported by the committee on foreign relations were voted down by majorities averaging about 19. The ratification resolution was adopted by a vote of 55 to 18.

The senate was in executive session for about an hour before the time for voting arrived listening to speeches by Senators Thurston, Gallinger, Volcott and Bard explanatory of their attitude.

Senator Lodge, who as a member of the committee on foreign relations has piloted the treaty through the senate since the death of Chairman Davis, lost no time in demanding that the voting begin when 8 o'clock arrived. The foreign relations committee amendments were read first. Senator Lodge himself suggested a verbal amendment to the first of these, adding the word "convention" after the word "which" so as to make the amendment read, "which convention is hereby superseded." He explained that suggestion had been made that without the addition of that word the amendment might be construed as applying only to article 8 of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, whereas, he said, it was intended to apply to the entire treaty.

SENATOR LODGE.

The amendment was accepted, and the two committee amendments then were both accepted without division.

The roll call on the treaty was as follows:

Yeas—Aldrich, Allison, Bacon, Rev. edge, Barrows, Carter, Chandler, Chy, Culham, DeLoe, Dillingham, Elkins, Fairbanks, Foraker, Foster, Frye, Gallinger, Hale, Hanna, Hamshorough, Harris, Hawley, Hoar, Jones of Nevada, Keen, Kenney, Lindsay, Lodge, McMillan, McCullough, McFarland, McHenry, McLaughlin, McMillan, Mallory, Morgan, Nelson, Penrose, Perkins, Pettit, Platt of New York, Pittsford, Proctor, Quail, Scott, Shoup, Spooner, Stewart, Sullivan, Tamm, Tamm, Thurston, Turner, Warren, Wetmore and Wolcott—55.

Nays—Allen, Ball, Bates, Berry, Butler, Cockrell, Culberson, Daniel, Reid, Teller, Tamm, Tamm, Vest and Wellington—18.

The yeas on the treaty vote were as follows: two senators for the treaty being paired with one against it, in accordance with custom; Dewey and Sewell for, with Randall against; Clark and Simon for, with Chilton against; Doolittle and Baker for, with Towne against; Caffery and Platt of Connecticut for, with Jones of Arkansas against; Kyle absent and unpaired. He was for the treaty, but no pair could be secured for him.

Text of the Treaty.

The text of the amended treaty is as follows: "The United States of America and her majesty the queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, emperor of India, being desirous to facilitate the construction of a ship canal to connect the Atlantic and Pacific oceans, and to that end to remove any objection which may arise out of the convention of April 10, 1850, commonly called the Clayton-Bulwer treaty, to the construction of such canal under the joint auspices of the government of the United States without impairing the 'general principle' of that convention, have for that purpose appointed as their plenipotentiaries the president of the United States, John Hay, secretary of state of the United States of America, and her majesty the queen of Great Britain and Ireland, emperor of India, the Right Hon. Lord Lansdowne, her majesty's ambassador extraordinary and plenipotentiary to the United States, who, having communicated to each other their full powers, which were found to be in due and proper form, have agreed upon the following articles:

"Article 1. It is agreed that the canal may be constructed under the auspices of the government of the United States, either directly at its own cost or by gift or loan of money to individuals or corporations or through subscription or purchase of stock or shares, and that, subject to the provisions of the present convention, the said government shall have and enjoy all the rights incident to such construction as well as the exclusive right of providing for the regulation and management of the canal.

"Article 2. The high contracting parties, desiring to preserve and maintain the 'general principle' of neutralization established in article 8 of the Clayton-Bulwer convention, which convention is hereby superseded, adopt as the basis of such neutralization the following rules substantially as embodied in the convention between Great Britain and certain other powers signed at Constantinople Oct. 20, 1858, for the free navigation of the Suez maritime canal—that is to say:

"First.—The canal should be free and open in time of war as in time of peace the vessels of commerce and of war of all nations on terms of entire equality, so that there shall be no discrimination against any nation or its citizens or subjects in respect of the conditions or charges of traffic or otherwise.

"Second.—The canal shall, never be blocked, nor shall any right of war be exercised nor any act of hostility be committed within it.

"Third.—The vessels of a belligerent shall not be restricted nor take any stores in the canal, except so far as may be strictly necessary, and the transit of such vessels through the canal shall be effected with the least possible delay, in accordance with the regulations in force and with only such intervention as may result from the necessities of the service. Prizes shall be in all respects subject to the same rules as vessels of war of the belligerents.

"Fourth.—No belligerent shall embark or disembark troops, munitions of war or warlike materials in the canal, except in case of accidental hindrance of the transit, and in such case the transit shall be resumed with all possible dispatch.

"Fifth.—The provisions of this article shall apply to waters adjacent to the canal, within three marine miles of either end. Vessels of war of a belligerent shall not remain in such waters longer than 24 hours at any one time except in case of distress, and in such case shall depart as soon as possible, but a vessel of war of one belligerent shall not depart within 24 hours from the departure of a vessel of war of the other belligerent.

The Davis Amendment.

"It is agreed, however, that none of the immediately foregoing conditions and stipulations in sections numbered 1, 2, 3, 4 and 5 of this article shall apply to measures which the United States may find it necessary to take for securing by its own forces the defense of the United States and the maintenance of public order.

"Sixth.—The plant, establishments, buildings and all other necessary to the construction, maintenance and operation of the canal shall be deemed to be part thereof, for the purposes of this convention, and in time of war, as in time of peace, shall enjoy complete immunity from attack or injury by belligerents and from acts calculated to impair their usefulness as part of the canal.

"Seventh.—No fortification shall be erected commanding the canal or the waters adjacent to it. The United States, however, shall be at liberty to maintain such military police along the canal as may be necessary to protect it against lawlessness and disorder."

"Article 8. which was stricken out by the committee amendment, reads: 'The high contracting parties will, immediately upon the exchange of the ratifications of this convention, bring it to the notice of the other powers and invite them to it and here to it.'

"Article 9. The present convention shall be ratified by the president of the United States by and with the advice and consent of the senate thereof and by her Britannic majesty, and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Washington or a London within six months from date hereof, or earlier if possible."

Debate on Clark Case.

A spirited debate was precipitated in the senate over the resolution of Mr. Chandler to discharge the committee or contingent expenses from further consideration of the resolution authorizing an investigation of the Montana senatorial case. The exchanges between the advocate and opponents of the resolution took a political turn and resulted in some lively colloquies. No action upon the resolution was taken, the senate proceeding to the consideration of executive business without reaching a vote.

The house passed the Indian and the Military academy appropriation bills. The former carried $9,000,000 and the latter $700,151. Neither provoked much discussion. A few minor amendments were placed upon the floor.

Woman's Privilege.

Green—Funny about my wife. She has been running on dreadfully about Will Stunyun, and only a day or two ago she declared Will was a regular tramp.

Gray—That's all right. A woman, you know, is hardly ever able to remember what's trumps.—Boston Transcript.

The United States leads all the world, except the British empire, in the total of all kinds of sailing craft, but is closely preceded by Norway, the figures being: United States, 2,656 vessels, of 1,229,266 tons, and Norway, 2,364 vessels, of 1,142,084 tons.

PORTO RICAN CASES CLOSE.

Submitted For Final Adjudication of Supreme Court.

Washington, Dec. 21.—The closing argument in the Philippines-Porto Rico cases has been made in the United States supreme court, and the cases have been submitted for the final adjudication of the court. As the government's case had been closed by the attorney general, it only remained to hear the senior counsel in the Philippines case, Charles H. Aldrich of Chicago, former solicitor general.

The first directed his attention to the circumstances under which this government came into existence, the struggle for liberty and the American protest against England's assertion of the taxing power over the American colonies. With this history before us, he said, it was a remarkable fact that the attorney general of the United States, more than 100 years after the great struggle which founded the American government, should come into this court and assert a taxing power more extreme than had been asserted by the most ardent defenders of England's taxing power over the colonies.

Mr. Aldrich spoke of the decision of Justice Marshall in Loughborough against Blake as of decisive importance, and he summed up that decision as bearing on the present conditions as follows:

"That the power to tax, levy duties, etc., extends to the entire United States. 'That the term 'United States' embraces our great republic, which is composed of states and territories; that it is not less necessary on the principles of our constitution that uniformity in the imposition of imposts, duties and excises should be observed in the one than the other.'

"It follows from the above that the rights and obligations of the territory thus a part of the United States and the inhabitants thereof are measured and tested by the constitution. The court has judicial notice of the fact that our government has no consuls in the Philippines and that when Spanish sovereignty ceased in those islands the United States ceased therein were withdrawn and that the consular agents of foreign powers, thereupon were the accredited representatives of the respective foreign governments to the United States, and our government signed the exequaturs of such consuls.

"What an anomaly it is to have Spain send its consuls to the Philippines if, as contended, for the purposes of revenue, they still are foreign territory! If they are not American territory they still must be Spanish, for it is not pretended that any other nation foreign to the United States has acquired any sovereignty over them, nor is it pretended that the Philippine Islands, in the eye of international law, occupy the status of an independent nation.

Mr. Aldrich declared that the sovereignty of the United States was one exercised under the constitution and that if we are in the Philippines or Porto Rico it is because of the powers held by the constitution.

Justice Harlan asked if the treaty power could go beyond the fourteenth amendment to the constitution, to which Mr. Aldrich answered that treaties could not override the constitution.

Mr. Aldrich finished the court turned to other cases, after allowing counsel in the Porto Rico case ten days to file a further brief.

MASSACRE BY TURKS.

Eleven Hundred Men Killed and 400 Women Frantically Maltreated.

Vienna, Dec. 21.—Further reports of the Turkish massacres of Christians show that their instigator is a Moham medan fanatic named Hadik Islam, who, brags of having slaughtered 200 Christians with his own hands. The Turkish authorities have shown utter indifference to the massacres, and the outrages perpetrated on Christians are being described.

At Bitum men were crucified on trees with stakes driven through their hands and feet. Women were attacked and then mutilated. Children were murdered by mutilation before their parents' eyes.

Women were maltreated at Grumma before the eyes of their husbands, fathers and brothers and then carried into the bondage of harems. Men were done to death slowly by various means, their limbs cut off successively, and children were thrown into the river.

The flocks tortured the Christians at Rilaritz by slicing flesh from all parts of their bodies before killing them. A Greek orthodox priest was tied in a sack and thrown into the river at Gerviza. The Serbian consul at Mitrovitz estimates that 1,100 persons have been killed and 400 women attacked and placed in harems.

Frye to Wed a Cuban.

Havana, Dec. 21.—Mr. Alexis E. Frye, senator-elect of Cuban senate, who will be married on New Year's day to Senora Maria Teresa Arruabarrena, a schoolteacher of Cardenas, has issued an appeal to the Cuban people urging them in the spirit of the New Year, the new century and of his marriage with a Cuban to drop the sentiment of hatred of Spain in the Cuban hymn and to substitute for the words "Not afraid of the Spanish tyrant" the words "Not afraid of the government of strangers." Senora Arruabarrena will issue 100,000 copies of the hymn containing the new words on the wedding day.

Pennsylvania Postoffice Burglarized. Bedford, Pa., Dec. 21.—The postoffice at Everett, Pa., was broken into and the safe blown open. The burglars secured about $500 in stamps and money and some personal papers of considerable value belonging to Postmaster Cobler. A number of letters were also taken.

Nervous Exhaustion

"Two years ago this summer I was in a miserable condition as the result of hard work. I was completely run down, pale and losing flesh, and so nervous that I could not sleep or even rest. It was dreadful to go to bed at night and not be able to wake for hours with nervousness.
My head troubled me a great deal, too, both with pain and dizziness.
If I stooped over at any time I would be so dizzy I could hardly see or keep from falling down. If I became a little excited my hands would shake so I could hardly hold anything.
"My best friend, a physician, but not one of them did me any permanent good.
"Of course, read of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, but had never taken any of them till Mr.
Robert Van Kuren, of Jordan, recommended them to me so strongly, from his own experience, that I got some and before the first box was used I began to feel that they were doing me good. I kept on taking them according to directions and got back to my normal state of health.
I am a firm believer in Dr. Williams'
Pink Pills for Pale People.

ON AN OSTRICH FARM.

How the Nests Are Made and the Little Chicks Hatched.

In the course of an article on ostrich farming in California contributed to Penny's Magazine the author, Mr. Edwin Cawston, says:
"After the heavy winter rains a pair will commence making their nest. The cock first sets to work by resting his breast-bone on the ground and kicking out the sand behind. When one side is sufficiently deep, he turns round and operates in like manner until a round hole about 3 feet in diameter and about a foot deep is the result. The hen then commences to lay, producing an egg every other day until 13 or 15 are in the nest. In order to protect the embryo from the hot rays of the sun, it will be noticed that a little sand is placed on the top of each egg by the hen.
This has possibly given rise to the supposition that an ostrich buries its eggs in the sand and leaves them for the sun to hatch, which is entirely untrue.

As soon as the full number of eggs are laid the couple share the work of hatching. The cock starts about 4 o'clock in the afternoon and remains on the eggs until about 9 o'clock the following morning.
Then the hen takes his place. He never falls, however, to relieve his mate for about an hour in the middle of the day while she goes in search of some food and water.
A good pair will follow this regime with the greatest regularity for 30 or 40 days when the chicks may be heard in the shell.
In most cases the chicks can break the shell themselves, but very often the hen can be seen pressing on the egg with her breastbone, and so helping the youngster into the world; sometimes she can be noticed taking hold of the little head and quite roughly shaking the shell off him.
When the chicks are taken from the old birds, they are allowed to run on a field of alfalfa (lucerne) and kept warm at night in well covered boxes; on the third day they will pick up little pieces of gravel, small stones or broken bones and on the fourth or fifth day will commence pecking the green alfalfa, which seems an ideal food for them, as the mortality is very small and their rapidity of growth remarkable—in fact, up to 6 months old they grow at the rate of one foot a month."

Not the Man.
An old negro strolled up to the window of the commissioner of registration in a western city recently and made application for registration papers.
"What is your name?" asked the commissioner.
"George Washington."
"Well, George, are you the man who out down the cherry tree?"
"No, sah, boss; no, sah, I ain't the man. I ain't done no work for nigh on to a year."—Washington Post.

A LAST WORD.
"All roadways," said the Roman pride—
"All roadways lead to Rome."
Perchance, however, men's paths divide,
At last they bring them home.

I have not known of mortal mold,
A wretch so fell and grim,
But when the story all was told
I needs must weep with him.

Time takes my strength, but gives my pen
A wider range and scope,
I view the heaven swayed lives of men
With endless trust and hope.

No more I label, sort, define God's dealings deep and dread,
I raise to heaven these eyes of mine,
And all my creed is said.

AN ENGLISH CORONATION.

Some of the Ceremonies That Are Seasoless and Fantastic.

From a strictly "up to date" point of view many of the ceremonies attendant on the coronation of the English sovereign are senseless and fantastic. But embodying, as they do, the history or tradition of centuries, from the student's standpoint they are of deep interest. Mr. P. H. Ditch-field, in a book concerning "Old English Customs," describes some of the most remarkable of these customs.

By hereditary right many persons have special dignities and duties at this time, and preceding a coronation a special court of claims is appointed to investigate these ancient rights and privileges.
The prerogative of the lord of the Manor of Workshop is to present a glove and to support the sovereign's arm when holding the scepter, and also to hold the office of chief butler, which entitles him to receive a cup of pure gold. The ceremony of an-throne is called "lifting to the throne," derived from the custom of our Anglo-Saxon forefathers, who, when their king was enthroned, lifted him from the ground.

Among the curious claims of service is that of a certain baron to carry the great spurs, and of the archbishop of Canterbury to make a mess of pottage, called dille groat.

Certain offerings are made, among which are an ingot of gold and an altar pail, composed of ten yards of gold banded, gold frosted, flowered brocade lined with rich sarcenet and with deep, gold fringe.
The golden chair on which the sovereign is seated has been in use since the time of Edward III and beneath it is the coronation stone, which was conveyed to Westminster from Scotland by Edward I. A well legend declares it to be the stone on which Jacob laid his head when he slept at Bethel.

The most solemn function is the anointing, during which four Knights of the Garter hold a canopy over the sovereign, while the archbishop pours the anointing oil with a spoon, which is the most ancient of all the regalia, and with which many sovereigns have been anointed.

But the strangest survival of all is the claim of the Dracoe family to the office of king's champion. His duty is to appear on horseback in full armor at the royal banquet after the coronation, accompanied by the earl marshal and the lord high constable. The champion then makes a challenge, according to the old time form of words, and throws down his gauntlet. The challenge not being accepted, the sovereign drinks the health of the champion in a silver cup, which is presented to the brave defender of English monarchy, who then backs his horse out of the hall.

"Sweetness and Light."
Professor Skeat, who has written more than 60 books on etymology and kindred subjects, has acquired the habit of delving after the roots instead of enjoying the flowers of the literature. In his "The Student's Pastime," he says of Dean Swift's famous phrase, "Sweetness and light," that it is a meaningless expression unless we know the context. He then explains, what all readers know, that Swift referred to bees and wrote that they fill their "hives with honey and wax, thus furnishing mankind with the two noblest of things, which are sweetness and light."

Whatever Swift may have meant by the phrase, it no longer, on the lips of any thinker, refers to the "sweetness" or the honey in the honeycomb and to the "light" of a taper. Skeat shows that he meant more than this by using the words "the two noblest of things."
But, the dean aside, the phrase "sweetness and light" now belongs to Matthew Arnold, who first used it to express the two greatest qualities of mind and soul. It has been said that he who quotes a thought is next in merit to him who conceived it, but he who fashions a phrase is surely not so praiseworthy as he who en-nobles it by a higher use. The worthy sentence in which Francis I. told his mother that "everything is lost except honor and life, which are saved," has been made sublime by some thinker who compressed the thought into "all is lost save honor."
Matthew Arnold, rising above the bees, either of Furness Fells or of Hybla, exalted Swift's words, and they now mean wherever English is spoken or read the noble sweetness of temper and the luminous and illuminating power of soul. We no longer quote Swift; we quote Arnold.

A Great Man Facing Defeat.
Mr. Gladstone, one of the greatest of Englishmen and a man who has seen comparatively few of his plans of state success, is said to be personally disliked by Queen Victoria. For years he had worked hard upon a plan having for its object the benefit of Ireland and Irish farmers and tenants. All of his plans were frustrated.
While his great policy was being wrecked
he sat in the library of the house of commons and read the words of a famous operator. Some friends, finding him there expressed amazement. But this act of the great minister did not indicate indifference. It showed rather a tension that sought relief in order to avoid worse effects, for when spoken to he said, with a voice full of pathos, "For the past five years I have rolled this stone patiently up hill, and it is now rolled to the bottom again, and I am 81 years old."—Atlanta Constitution.

Surprised.
"I was really surprised at Johnny. He came in and begged a quarter, saying that he wanted to go to the gallery to see the pictures."
"You needn't be alarmed. He isn't getting Bostonian. It was the theater gallery he meant, and the pictures are alive."— Indianapolis Journal.

In Chile they let nothing in the apple go to waste. There, after making elder and wine from their apples, they extract from the refuse a white and finely flavored spirit, and by another process they procure a sweet treacle, or, as they term it, honey.

Of civilized peoples the Mexicans are said to be the most superstitious.

HE HAD HIS REASONS.

So the Old Gentleman Married His Daughter to His Cashier.

"Young Snaggle asked for a brief and ancise of this morning," announced the old gentleman rather abruptly.

"Yes," returned the old lady.
"He didn't beat about the bush at all,
but came to the point at once," continued the old gentleman.

"Yes," said the old lady.
"He wants to marry Mabel, and he asked for my consent."

"Yes,"
"I gave it."
"You what?"
The old lady was unquestionably astonished. Both her voice and manner showed that.

"I gave my consent," repeated the old gentleman.

"But only last week, when I told you how attentive he was becoming, you said that you would never give your consent to their marriage under any circumstances," protested the old lady.

"I know it," he admitted, "but later I got to thinking it over, and somehow I couldn't get away from the fact that he has been acting as my cashier for a long time."
"But I don't see!"
"Then I remembered that he had spoken once or twice of a desire to visit the City of Mexico."

"But what has that to do with?"
"I recalled also that Mabel had said something about enjoying a trip to Mexico."
"I still fail to understand!"
"That's because you're not in business," interrupted the old gentleman. "If you had ever had occasion to make a study of these matters, you would see the advantage of having your confidential clerk and your daughter marry at home rather than in some place from which extortion is more or less difficult, and so keep the money where you at least have a show of getting some of it. It's a good deal easier and more satisfactory than hiring detectives.
It also avoids a scandal, financial and the other kind."

And, after pondering the matter for some time, the old lady, like a wise woman, decided to bow to her husband's will and do what little she could to assist him in keeping the money in the family.—Chicago Post.

MR. KEMPLE'S OBITUARY.

He Was Pleased With All the Accounts
He Read Except One.

Jacob Kemple, the Republican orator, has a natural vein of humor and nothing amuses him more than to tell about his own obituary. He is one of the few men who have had the satisfaction of reading their own death notices. "I never knew I had so many good traits," he said in a Republican club up town, "until I was reported dead."

"Were you actually dead?" asked a friend.

"No, not even in a cataleptic way. It was a case of mistaken identity, but it endured an editor down south to get a good thing out of me. Several years ago I was helping the Republican county committee to stump this city for Morton and Saxton.
One day there appeared a dispatch in the morning newspapers from Newburg stating that Jacob Kemple had been drowned in the Hudson river. His body had been recovered and there could be no mistake about the identity of the body, for it had an India ink anchor on the left arm. By a singular coincidence I have since a mark on my left arm, and all my friends in West Virginia, where I came from, know it. All the papers in my congressional district, and even out of it, published obituaries that I could take no exception to, whatever. One of the papers, however, that had the most flattering account of my career, closed it in this way: 'We have known Mr. Kemple, loved him, hunted

Mr. Pettigrew also threatens to waste good printers' ink.
Stain would like to remove himself from the Maine state prison.
Mr. Olney does not come under the classification of the "rank and file," according to Mr. Cleveland.
Undoubtedly Mr. Bryan preferred that those kidnappers out in his state had been paid that ransom in silver.

Booz, tobacco sauce and eighty-five prunes are the principal things under consideration at the investigation at West Point.

Once again the powers are said to have agreed upon a joint note. The greatest trouble with previous notes has been that they were out of joint.

There is a strong suspicion that the man who reports the temperature up in Northfield, Vt., sleeps in the northeast corner room, with the window open.

Major Day won't sound half as nice as just plain Holman. But we are certain that the title won't change the future results of the pen that produced "Up in Maine."

The benefits of a rural delivery of mails justifies the liberal discussion of the subject in the report of Postmaster General Smith. It is encouraging to read what he says in regard to the question. Mr. Smith says: "It stimulates social and business correspondence and so swells the postal receipts. Its introduction is invariably followed by a large increase in the circulation of the press and periodical literature. The farm, is thus brought into daily contact with the movements of the business world. A more accurate knowledge of ruling markets and varying prices is diffused, and the producer, with his quicker communications and larger information is placed on a surer footing. The value of farms, as has been shown in many cases, is enhanced. Good roads become indispensable, as their improvement is the essential condition of the service. The material and measurable benefits are signal and unmistakable."

At last a preacher of the Gospel has used a little out of the ordinary methods of attracting attention to his sermon without being sensational or ridiculous. He is Rev. A. N. White of the Methodist church in Austin, Illinois. He advertised for five hundred girls to attend the Sunday evening services in his church and announced that his subject would be, "If I Were a Girl." The church was crowded to the doors, mostly by young people. Instead of saying some foolish things that would have been of no credit to himself or instruction to his hearers, he said among other things: "If I were a girl I would seek for the foundation principles that would bring to me a pretty face, form and dress without the use of paint or powder or arts of the tailor. I would seek to have a sound, healthy body, and in securing this I would use more Indian clubs and tennis rackets and less of the dance racket."

Every day brings out the fact that some member of the legislature who has been counted as against Senator Chandler makes the public announcement that he will vote for him. The friends of Barham, Baker and the others are trying the best they know how to manufacture enthusiasm, but up to date they have met with defeat. The cry that they were favored by all the leading party men has been called as false, for the real party men are favoring Senator Chandler. When the representatives assemble in Concord there, will be the greatest outburst of Chandler sentiment that has ever been known. The Burnham supporters are now saying that they just wanted to get their candidate before the people, or that they were supporting him because he was a Manchester man. The fact has leaked out that the representatives are nearly to a man, (where they are not owned by outsiders,) for Chandler, and they can see the hand-writing on the wall.

SERIOUSLY INJURED.
Jeremiah Hobbs The Victim Of A Mysterious Accident.

Jeremiah Hobbs, a laborer in the construction department at the navy yard, lies at his home on the Crockett's Neck road, Kittery Point, suffering from severe injuries which may end fatally, as the result of an accident that is involved in mystery.
Mr. Hobbs was found prone in the street near the Austin school, just below Locke's cove, on Friday evening, by Conductor G. D. Paul and Motor-man A. B. Trundy, of the Portsmouth, Kittery and York street railway, who run on the half past six car to the ferry. They found Mr. Hobbs unconscious and apparently badly hurt and took him to the office of Dr. E. E. Shapleigh at Kittery Foreside.

The doctor discovered that the victim had an ugly scalp wound and a badly cut eye and probably internal injuries. Mr. Hobbs was removed to his home, where he was still unconscious late in the evening.

It is impossible to explain how he was hurt. It was dark at the time the car men picked him up, and it is not known how long he had been lying in the roadway.

Mr. Hobbs is nearly seventy years of age, which lessens materially his chances of recovery. His mates at the navy yard regard him highly.

SPORTING NOTES.

The basket ball league series promises to be very interesting.

Some of the hockey teams should arrange for a game Christmas.

After Christmas, the basket ball enthusiasts will get into the sport with renewed fervor.

The young ladies of the High school are practicing hard to make their basket ball team a good one.

Visitors from Kittery say that the Kittery hockey team will show the Unity club seven how the game is played.

Those old rivals Andover and Exeter will come together in a relay race at the Boston Athletic association annual indoor meet.

Just at present, the bowling league schedule does not appear to be attracting much attention, but as the fight grows hotter, interest will revive.

Patsy Sweeney, the Manchester pugilist, boxed a fifteen round draw in Boston, Wednesday evening, the 19th inst., with George McFadden, who is considered McGovern's most dangerous rival.

The proposed trip of the Columbia football team to California, to meet the University of California team, has been abandoned, owing to the refusal of the Columbia faculty to give their permission for the team to take so long a journey.

Some York sportsmen assert that the town at the end of the Portsmouth, Kittery and York line will not put out a basket ball team this winter, while others assert that the town will have a team, which will make the best of the Portsmouth fives look like a picture no artist can paint.

WHAT IS TANGIN?

It is a woman's medicine, possessing the precise ingredients needed by the delicate organs of her sex. Her dull, dragging pains and exhausted feelings simply cannot remain after taking TANGIN for a short time.

No woman need suffer after knowing about TANGIN no woman will suffer after she has taken it.

TANGIN works hand in hand with nature and revives the enfeebled organs to full vital force. It is just the medicine nature intended woman to take when nervous, run down, weak and generally debilitated.

BUCK HOLLOW, VT., June 24, 1900.
Dear Sir: I will write you now and tell you how much good your TANGIN has done me, and also thank you for your good advice. No one can tell what I have suffered from leucorrhoea and kidney trouble during the last ten years. Before I began to take TANGIN I could not do my own work, but now I do all my work alone, washing and ironing. I spoke to my doctor about TANGIN and he said it was all you claimed it to be, that it was splendid for me and to keep on taking it. TANGIN is a blessing from God, for it relieved me. Yours, with respect,
MRS. FRANK L. COURTMARSH.

FOR A WORTHY OBJECT.
Managers of Old Ladies' Home Ask the Attention of the Public.

A special meeting of the board of managers of the Home for Aged Women, was held at the home on Deer street at three o'clock on Friday afternoon and fourteen members of the board were present.

For some time the heating of the home has been under consideration and the matter was one that demanded immediate attention, to prevent actual suffering to the inmates of the home and additional and needless expense, on account of the inadequate system of heating used there.

It was decided that something should be done at once and as the bids for a new system, recently asked for from various Portsmouth firms, were all in, the contract for furnishing an entirely new apparatus was awarded to the lowest bidder, a Market street firm.

The board of managers has undertaken quite an expense in contracting for the new system of heating. The rooms are large and the halls have to be heated comfortably and it will be necessary to put in two boilers. The old system has been in use there for over twenty years and is absolutely worthless.

Now the board of managers have decided to make plans for the raising of money to meet this expense and will probably conduct a fair or benefit of this nature during the winter and will also try to get money by other means. One contribution of $250 has been made, so far. The new system will be put in at once.

There is no doubt that the public will respond liberally to any plans of the managers of the home. The object is most worthy and the benefits bestowed are more than generally known.

QUICK HOUSE BUILDING.

Boston & Maine Erect a Structure at Deerfield in Twelve Hours.

The Boston & Maine railroad company has established a new record in the rapid construction of buildings, and one in which it takes great pride as illustrating the possibilities of the operating department when its machinery is in full working order.

Friday evening four cars were loaded with material for the erection of a building at East Deerfield for use by the engine and trainmen who stop at that point and either return to Rotterdam Junction or to Boston as the case may be. Thirty men were sent with the material. Friday morning at 7 o'clock the work of erection was started and at night the building was ready for occupancy, accommodation for thirty-eight men having been provided. The building was fitted with bunks, stoves, cooking utensils and everything required in keeping house.

HEARD AT RANDOM.

It Reached Him All Right.

A few days ago there came into the Portsmouth post-office a letter addressed in a most unusual manner. On the envelope was a pen and ink sketch of a man's face, and under it, "Portsmouth, N. H." That was all. Not even the initials of the addressee had been put on. But he got the letter, just the same. The portrait was so perfect that within a few minutes after the letter was dumped out of a man's bag in the office, the clerk in a local pharmacy had it presented to him by a carrier. Although this clerk is a comparative stranger in town, yet a post office employee recognized the likeness on the envelope almost instantly.

Company B Whist.

Already ten teams have signified their intention of entering the proposed whist tournament of Company B, and it is likely that the play will be commenced at the armory next week. The games will be played just as speedily as it is possible to get the teams together, evenings. As there are plenty of clever whist students in the company, an interesting tournament is looked for.

OBSEQUES.

The funeral of Mrs. Alfred J. McCourt was held at the Church of the Immaculate Conception at eight o'clock this morning. There were many present at the sad occasion. The impressive mass for the dead was said by the Rev. E. M. O'Callaghan, the pastor. There were beautiful floral tributes in profusion. Interment was in the family lot in Calvary cemetery. The funeral director was Mr. O. W. Ham.

The funeral of J. Winkley Hoyt will be held in the church at Newington this afternoon. The pastor of the church will officiate.

CLOSE CALL FOR JACK TAR.
Just as the Shark Was About to Grab Him a Swordfish Got the Shark.
"Speaking of wonderful adventures," said the retired sea captain, "I doubt if anything ever was more wonderful than the one I'm going to tell you. It happened a good many years ago, but that doesn't alter its excellence or interfere with its truth. I was first mate on the Lovely Lou of Bangor, and we had been on our way South America for about four weeks. The wind had left the ship during the last day of this period, and we were dipping our peak to a lolling swell that seemed to come from nowhere and return to the same place without making a ripple on the blue surface of the ocean. The sails were set, and their shadows fell clear upon the glassy surface, but where the sun fell the water was as clear as crystal. We were well within the tropics then, and several big sharks had been seen playing about the vessel. Suddenly there came a splash, and the cook ran to where I was standing on the poop deck, crying that one of the sailors had tumbled overboard. The Lou had no way, and I laughed at the idea of him drowning, telling the cook to throw him a rope, walking to the rail as I did so. "The sailor was swimming about the quarter enjoying his bath when I suddenly saw an ominous black fin make its appearance 100 yards or so from the ship. I yelled for the rope, and as I yelled I saw the fin move toward the sailor, cutting the last fin move toward the sailor, cutting the water like a knife. I knew that unless the man was taken out quickly he would be devoured, and I rushed to the cabin grating to get a line. Seizing a piece of rope, I hastened to the rail just in time to see the form of an immense shark turn on its side to seize the sailor. As he did so there was an instant's glimpse of a long brown body, and then the water was slashed into a sea of yeast foam, the shark seemingly being in trouble. "I threw the line, and in a moment the sailor was aboard, scared out of his wits, but safe and sound. The thrashing in the water still continuing, we proceeded to investigate, and directly we were able to see that the shark had been plumed by a large swordfish, the sword running through the jaws of the shark in such a manner as to prevent the fish from opening them. Whether the shark's antagonist had deliberately attacked the shark we know not, but its timely and unexpected appearance saved the sailor's life beyond a doubt, as another instant would have sent the teeth of the shark into the body of the man. We managed to release the sword from the shark and killed the latter, letting the other go free. It was a narrow squeak, I tell you." —New Orleans Times-Democrat.
ELEPHANTS WITH MEMORIES.
One Avenged an Injury and Another Recognized a Benefactor.
Elephants have a way of remembering injuries and kindnesses which surprises men not accustomed to the beasts. E. L. Layard and his wife were in Ceylon, in the Ambigama district. They were journeying along gathering insects, shells and birds by easy stages when they came to the station of a roadmaking party which was in charge of Woodford Birch. Mrs. Layard was interested in elephants, not the kind seen any day close at hand, so Mr. Birch took her out to see a large fine female. Mrs. Layard petted the beast, gave it a bunch of plantains, which were eaten with relish, and after making comments on the beast's gentleness returned to the bungalow. There Mr. Birch incidentally remarked that it was a violent beast, having killed two keepers during the past month. When Mr. Layard heard that, he reproached Mr. Birch, while Mrs. Layard grew pale. Then Mr. Birch said: "Do you think I would have allowed Mrs. Layard to go near her if there had been danger? That elephant is the quietest and best tempered beast in the stud. She was quite right to kill the keepers. They had robbed her of her food. I had observed that she was growing thin, and feeding only a little grain or feed in the box one day I rated the keeper soundly in the presence of the beast. Next day he took her out to work. She went along quietly till she came to a flat rock. Then she wrapped her trunk about the mahout, put him against the rock and with her forehead squeezed his life out. The next man she killed for the same offense." Dan Quinton and Mr. Layard were in Colombo when Quinton heard elephants trumpeting and wanted to go to see them. One of the beasts was tied up with men chains than the others, and Quinton went toward this one, in spite of the warnings of keepers that it was a particularly vicious beast. Quinton put his arm around the elephant's trunk and petted it, the elephant seeming most pleased. Quinton had recognized it as an elephant he had seen injured by a huge thorn, or jungle nail. The keeper, in trying to pull the thorn out, had broken it off. In a few days inflammation had set in. Quinton went to work with a knife and pair of pinchers, and the elephant, in spite of the pain, laid down and let the thorn be removed. He had recognized the beast by the scar, and the elephant remembered him after several years. —New York Sun.
Brainy Horses.
A Londoner tells of a most intelligent bus horse running on the Baywater route. When this fine animal sees any one waving an umbrella or stick as a signal to attract the driver's attention, it instantly stops and actually turns its head to watch the passenger taken up before it will start again. Equally remarkable is the intelligence displayed by an old horse belonging to Sir Blundell Maple's firm. This old horse is worked with a young one, which it takes under its control in a most amusing manner. For instance, when the team is halted, the old horse will take the young one by the reins in its mouth and hold it there until the signal to move on is given. —Pearson's Weekly.
Prima Facie Evidence.
"Young man, what right have you to kiss my daughter on short acquaintance?" "What proof, sir, have you that I have done any such thing?" "No positive proof, young man; but that halp in your mustache is strong circumstantial evidence." —London Telegraph.

HER GRIEFS WERE GREAT.
Mrs. Alexander Hamilton's Trials Beyond the Usual Lot of Woman.
A writer in The Atlantic Monthly says that when she was a child of 12 she knew Mrs. Alexander Hamilton, then a charming old lady of 98, overflowing with reminiscences. One was of a great gathering of the Indians of eastern New York at Saratoga, which was then only a log fort. The chiefs and greatest warriors of the Six Nations, dressed in barbaric pomp, but with peace on their faces, stood waiting the approach of a small group of whites—one or two officers in full uniform and a tall, commanding man, in the prime of life, leading by the hand a slim girl of 18. The tall man was General Philip Schuyler, whom the Indians honored as they did no other white man, and they had men to offer him a tribute of devotion. At a sign from the great chief their ranks parted to admit General Schuyler, who advanced into the open space still leading his little daughter. There, with many ceremonies, the child was formally adopted by the Six Nations, the chiefs ending the sacred rite by laying their hands upon her head and giving her an Indian name meaning "One of Us." And Mrs. Hamilton was the little maid.
One day the old lady was talking about men of bodily strength, and she told an incident which must have happened soon after her marriage, for she was at the time in headquarters with her husband. General Washington was writing in his office, a room on the second floor of a farmhouse. The farmer's wife, who was washing clothes, suddenly discovered that the shed roof was on fire. She rushed screaming into the house, and Washington came bounding down the stairs, picked up one of the lady's shawls full of suds, ran up stairs with it, got out on the roof and emptied it on the blaze. Then he ran for another tub and still another before he succeeded in putting out the fire.
One night Mrs. Hamilton seemed sad and absentminded and would not go into the parlor, where there were visitors, but sat near the fire and played backgammon for awhile. When the game was done, she leaned back in her chair a long time with closed eyes, as if lost to all around her. Presently the silence was broken by the murmured words: "I am so tired. It is so long. I want to see Hamilton."
What thoughts must have come to her from the past! She had griefs beyond the usual lot of women. Her eldest son, Philip, fell in a duel before his father met a similar fate, and the oldest daughter, a lovely young creature, was so shocked by her brother's cruel death that she became insane. Though she lived to be an old woman it was as an inmate of a private asylum.
American Clothing For Inauguration.
Washington set the example, which has been followed at frequent intervals by new presidents even to our day, of wearing at the first inauguration ceremonies clothing of American manufacture. He was dressed in a suit of dark cloth made at Hartford. I have been able to find no mention of the nationality of the "light drab suit" which John Adams wore. Jefferson was inaugurated in his "everyday clothes," which may or may not have been exclusively American. But before the end of his service as president he appeared at his New Year's reception dressed in an entire suit of homespun, and Madison carried the matter a step farther, for some of his representatives to the house of the house of representatives to be inaugurated he was spoken of as a "walking argument in favor of the encouragement of native wool." His coat had been made on the farm of Colonel Humphreys, and his waistcoat and small clothes on that of Chancellor Livingston, all from the wool of merino sheep raised in the country. John Quincy Adams says in his diary that the house was very much crowded, and that its appearance was magnificent, but that Mr. Madison read his address in a tone so low that it could not be heard. Contemporary descriptions of Madison picture him as a small, modest and jovial man. Washington Irving spoke of him in 1812, at the time of his second election to the presidency, as "a withered little apple-john," and an English observer as "a little man with small features, rather wizened, but occasionally lit up with a good natured smile." He was habitually neat and genteel in his appearance, says another writer, dressed like a "well bred and tasty old school gentleman." American wool seems, therefore, to have made its first appearance as a "walking argument" under favorable conditions. —Joseph B. Bishop in Century.
Four Legged Traders.
There is a mouse in Florida locally known as the trading mouse. It is commonly a words mouse, but it quickly adapts itself to human habitation. A colony of such mice carried two bushels of shelled beans 30 feet during six nights recently and replaced the beans with seed pods of a weed. Jewelry, too, has been taken by these little traders. One woman on the east coast of Florida at an Indian river winter resort found a number of seeds instead of a pair of earrings that she had left on the bureau. A search in the place where the seeds had been kept disclosed the earrings.
A man who had a box of poker chips in his room in an open top box was surprised to find in their stead a string of prayer beads, a small crucifix and a number of shells. He started an investigation immediately. A priest who had roomed near by was equally puzzled by finding the colored poker chips in his room.
It is generally believed that the trading mouse learns its curious ways by robbing squirrels or blue jays of nuts laid by for future use. —New York Sun.
Not to Be Scared.
In an old fashioned churchyard in Scotland a pile of skulls and bones had been turned up in the process of graveldigging. The plovers in a bothy near by offered the "loot" 5 shillings to go at night and remove one. The lad agreed and started in the dark.
An ambush had been laid to frighten him. As he lifted one skull a hollow voice called: "That's mine!"
"A' right," said the lad, laying the ghastly thing down to lift another. Again came from the darkness a voice: "That's mine!"
"Gae awa', ye haverin' idiot! Ye cannae hae twa skulls." —Pearson's Weekly.
Hatched It.
"Mr. Gibbons," said the teacher of the class in rhetoric, "point out the absurdity in this figure of speech, 'At this time the Emperor Frederick hatched out a scheme,' etc."
"It seems to me all right," replied the young man after some reflection.
"It does? Explain, if you please, how he could have 'hatched out' a scheme."
"Well, he might have had his mind set on it." —Chicago Tribune.

THEY TOOK A PINCH.
THE DAYS WHEN SNUFF TAKING WAS JUST THE THING.
Ceremonies Observed by Devotees of the Libbit-Tob Poppery of Benn Brummel and Lord Petersham—Ladies and Men of High Degree Took Their "Powders."
There is no habit affliction mankind than that of snuff taking. Pope Urban's fulminations against it, says the London Standard, failed utterly. The Grand Monarque had an unconquerable aversion to it, yet it flourished in his court under the patronage of his queen, and his name is still associated with some of the most artistic of snuffboxes. John Wesley declared it a silly, nasty custom. Swift and Pope made it the subject of their gibes and sneers; yet it flourished, and the habit still permeates all classes and society. It has not only had its devotees and its defenders, but also its poets and its apoplexies, if the word can be used in that sense.
Southey described it as the "most innocent of sensualities," and many old writers dwell in a fastidious manner on its delights. The snuff itself should be "soft and silky to the touch." The boxes in which it should be kept should be made "with all the art the greatest artist could bestow," with a joint so fine it "shuts the sharpest sight," graced with radiant gems, and even within the lid "the painter plays his part, and with his pencil proves his matchless art." Then there were different schools of snuff taking. In old numbers of The Tatler will be found advertisements offering to teach "the ceremonies of the snuffbox." These were very elaborate. There were special rules for offering snuff to the stranger, the friend or to a mistress, according to the degree of familiarity or distance, with explanations proffered as to the correct use of the snuff, the polite or the early pinch, and the gestures proper to each of them.
Benn Brummel and other exquisites prided themselves on the graceful way in which they opened their snuffboxes with the left hand only, but the whole history of snuff taking furnishes no more extravagant instance of the popery of snuff taking than that of Lord Petersham, who is credited with having kept a special snuffbox for every day in the year and to have had a stock of varied snuffs to the value of £3,000. Some of his boxes, "for summer wear and winter use," as the historian quaintly puts it, are in the possession of Lord Salisbury, who has a very fine collection of historic boxes.
Next to Lord Petersham ranks Edward Wortley Montague, who kept in use "boxes enough for a hundred noses of Chinese idlers." The ladies, too, in the days of patches and powder, took snuff privately and publicly. "By snuff assisted ladies killed the day and breathed their scandal freely o'er their tea." Even in church the thoroughbred woman of fashion, we read, "pulled out her box in the midst of the sermon, and, with well bred audacity, offered it to her neighbors." The snuffbox was as recognized an adjunct of the toilet table as the fan. It was Catherine de Medici who brought snuff taking into fashion among ladies in France, from whence it spread to England, and it was for a long time known as l'herbe du Reine. What did more than anything else to kill the habit among the fair sex was the fact that, in the case of the dauphiness of France, she was poisoned by means of a deadly compound mixed with her favorite Spanish snuff, contained in an elegant box given to her by the Duc de Noailles. After that even men were for a long time shy of taking a pinch of snuff from a stranger, as it was believed that the jewels adorned this means of disposing of their enemies.
Mention has been made of the ceremony of the snuffbox, and this forms one of the most curious chapters in the history of snuff taking. A man expressed his homage in his way of tendering his box or his hostility in the way in which he took the proffered pinch. At one time to refuse a pinch of snuff was an unpardonable breach of good manners. It was quite a ceremonious business, and no bargain was ever struck without an interchange of boxes. One judged of a man's breeding by the way in which he took his snuff, but it was not always a sure test.
One of the worst offenders in this way was Dr. Johnson, who "took his powder by the painful," diving for it under the flaps of his capacious waistcoat pockets and creating quite a shower of snuff all around him. Napoleon also took his snuff in handkerchiefs and kept it, as Dr. Johnson did, in his waistcoat pocket. Gibbon, the historian, was a profuse snuff taker, and Frederick the Great was so fond of it that he had big pockets made on purpose, so that he could with as little trouble as possible get for immediate use the largest quantity he could wish. These are instances of the vulgarities of snuff taking, rather than the aesthetics, but they serve to throw the latter into relief.
The courtliness of snuff taking was indeed cultivated to so high a point that he who received the pinch must be as punctilious as he who offered it. Nothing offended the aesthetic sense of the cultured snuff taker more than to disturb the contents of the box with one's finger. In a mixed gathering, when boxes were sent round the table, such a one watched with trepidation the circulation of his box, lest it should be polluted by a profane touch. A moment of excruciating agony came once to Benn Brummel. It was at Portman square, when, on the removal of the cloth, the snuffboxes made their appearance. Brummel's was particularly admired as it was handed round. At last it reached a gentleman, who, finding it difficult to open, applied a desert tike to the lid. Brummel had been on thorns, and at last, unable to control himself longer, addressed his host with characteristic quaintness, saying, "Will you be good enough to tell your friend that my snuffbox is not in oyster?" Some people carried this refined feeling so far that they would never accept snuff that had been touched by any fingers but their own. Frederick the Great was one of these. He would not take snuff from any one else's box, and, one day, catching a page stealing a pinch from his box, he said to him: "Put that box in your pocket. It is not big enough for two." George II had the same whim, and once at a masquerade threw away his box because a visitor dipped into it.
"Hung" or "Hanged?"
It is reported that during a recent libel action the presiding judge used the expression, "You would be hung if you did," to the accompaniment of the customary law court "laughter." It is not often one catches the judicial bench tripping, but was not this a mistake? Pictures, clothes, hats, and the like, are hung; human beings surely not. If directed at the plaintiff's grammar, I imagine the "laughter" to have been warranted. —Notes and Queries.

INVASION OF CAPE COLONY.
Government Issues a Memorandum Describing Situation.
Cape Town, Dec. 21.—The situation in the northern districts of Cape Colony is more serious. Fully 2,000 Boers have invaded that section. Grave fears are entertained that Dutch sympathizers will join the rebellion and that this will spread. Although there is no fear as to the ultimate result, the lack of a sufficient number of mounted troops is felt by the British. The enormous waste of horses in South Africa was never fully appreciated until now.
A government memorandum, issued at Cape Town last evening, makes the following announcement: "The principal seat of action has been transferred to the northern part of Cape Colony. Early Dec. 16 a large body of Boers crossed the Orange river toward Burgersdorp. A British force followed, to avoid which the Boers turned westward and occupied Ventersdorp Dec. 18, but they evacuated the town the same day on the approach of the British and marched in the direction of Steynsburg. "The Boers, however, have been intercepted and find difficulty in moving in any direction, as Steynsburg, Burgersdorp, Stormberg, Rosendal and Naauwpoort are all strongly held by the British, and the Orange river has risen considerably in their rear.
"Another 2,000 Boers crossed at Sandrift, making for Olesberg, but on the dispatch of a British force they diverged and occupied Philippstown Dec. 19, cutting the telegraph wires between Philippstown and Houktraal. Early this morning a portion of these Boers reached Houktraal station and cut the line there. "Considerable re-enforcements have been sent to De Aar and Hanover, and it is expected that further invasion will now be stopped except in the case of scouting parties, which may slip through to raid cattle and to obtain much needed supplies.
"Hitherto there has been very little fighting, as the enemy in every instance have retired before the British. They took our garrison of 20 men at Ventersdorp prisoners, but the Magerfontein garrison repulsed their attacks, inflicting heavy loss after some hours' fighting and a refusal of a demand to surrender.
"It is probable that some of the invading forces, the former as a part of De Wet's commando, and the latter consisting of several small commandos hitherto operating in the west of Orange River Colony and of a number of rebels. Therefore martial law has been proclaimed in several additional districts."

Investigating Fredonia Fire.
Fredonia, N. Y., Dec. 21.—Coroner Charles Blood, assisted by District Attorney Greene and his assistant, Elton D. Warner, examined 12 witnesses yesterday in an effort to ascertain those to blame for the death of the six students in the fire of Dec. 14 which destroyed the Normal school. Dr. Francis R. Palmer, principal, described the screens in the windows before the fire escaped, stating that they were easily unhooked from the inside, but his testimony he gave over with grief and buried his face in his folded arms, sobbing. Louis McKinstrey, secretary of the local board of managers, swore that the screens over the fire escape windows were put there without any official action of the board, and he did not know such obstructions existed until after the fire. Various details of the fire were given by other witnesses, but none swore that they saw the five who perished near the Terrace street fire escape on the morning of the holocaust. For lack of witnesses the inquest adjourned until Jan. 3, when the rescued students will return to testify.
Fracture In Steel.
The subject of microscopic fractures in steel engineering work has lately been discussed by the Sheffield Society of Engineers and Metallurgists. In a paper on the subject by Professor Andrews it was shown that an ordinary railway axle is composed of about 2,313,178,300 primary crystals, the latter being often again subdivided into still larger numbers of secondary crystals. This paper pointed out that many fractures in steel are due to the presence of innumerable internal microfractures in the metal caused by the presence of very minute quantities of sulphur and other impurities. Sulphur was declared to be the most dangerous element in producing these microfractures, owing to the formation, during the solidification of large masses of steel, of sulphide of iron, which, on the final crystallization of the metal, located itself between the ultimate crystals of the steel. —Philadelphia Press.

NO CLEW TO KIDNAPERS
Cudahy Boy's Captors Get Away With Ransom.
STATEMENT BY POLICE CAPTAIN.
He Says That the Millionaire Factor Was So Fearful For His Child's Safety That He Insisted on Complicity With Dandies' Demands.
Omaha, Dec. 21.—The price of Edward Cudahy's liberty was $25,000 in gold, and the kidnapers have the money and the parents have their 15-year-old son again. This is the dramatic sequel of the excitement of the sudden disappearance of the young man.
The story stands out unique in the history of the criminal annals of the west. After watching the Cudahy home for a month for the purpose of abducting one of the Cudahy girls, the robbers suddenly concluded to take the boy. He was thrust into a cab within a block of home at 7 o'clock in the evening on a well lighted and prominent thoroughfare, carried into the outskirts of the city, kept a prisoner 48 hours and finally handed over to his distracted father in return for a fortune in cash.
The daring of the robbers alone is an interesting feature of the case, to say nothing of the extraordinary cunning and executive ability in handling the case to a successful conclusion and getting away with the cash in spite of the presence of hundreds of armed men ready to kill them on sight. Young Cudahy's mother insists on the house being guarded in her terror lest her boy be stolen away again. Another interesting phase of the case is that Mr. Cudahy will take no part in now trying to identify the thieves, he having promised his wife to drop the case, as Mrs. Cudahy feared further violence from the kidnapers.
Police Captain's Statement.
"Most people will wonder why the police did not attempt to capture the kidnapers of young Cudahy when his father took out that $25,000 Wednesday evening," said Chief of Police Donahue last night. "We could have done so, but it was Mr. Cudahy's wish that we do nothing that would interfere with the safety of the boy. Mrs. Cudahy was nearly broken down with nervous prostration, and Mr. Cudahy was little better. "He said to us, 'I first want the boy.' So he took the matter in his own hands and went out alone with the money. I told him that we were at his service and would do anything he wanted of us, but he was so afraid that they might do something to the boy that would injure him. "Now, I can say that no effort will be lost to bring the abductors to justice. This is for the benefit of the public and to prevent a repetition of this most dangerous crime. Mr. Cudahy evinces but little desire to prosecute the case, but he promises to do whatever we want him to do in the matter. He has offered no reward and I am depending on money in the case. I do not know the best of him I ever saw, now that he has his boy again. "We are trying to locate the house in which the boy was kept. I think from the story that it is between Russers Park and Sarpy Mills, west of South Omaha. We suspect certain parties of doing the job, but do not wish anything further published at this time about this line. "About a month ago R. W. Patrick came to me and said that two men had rented a house of his father near Happy Hollow, on the western edge of the city, paying $6 a month for it, and that his father's hired hand was suspicious of them. The two men never went to the house except early in the evening, when they would stay for an hour or so and go away. The hired man tried to talk to them, and they had always turned away. Then he found that they had put locks on all of the doors and had put papers over all of the windows, so one day he broke in and found nothing in the house at all, except one room had a Yale lock on the outside and that there was a smell of gasoline in the room. "Suspected House Searched. "At once notified the sheriff who was outside of the city limits. Four men went with me. They found the house, but it had been around for a week. The house broke in and found in the house a gasoline stove. That was all that the strangers were new to the place. These are the things that frightened away from one place and went to another. "It is certain the men have been figuring for a long time on a job of this kind. About six weeks ago young Cudahy went one evening with his mother to call at J. P. Barton's, 2016 Capitol avenue, and they were watching him then. After getting him this time they asked if he remembered that night he went dining with his mother, and when he told them that he did they told him that they came very nearly getting him that night. The fact that his mother was always probably prevented it. "As to the number of men, it is not certain that there were more than three, although they tried to give the boy the impression that there were six. I can promise you this, that we will do all in our power to get them."
Standard Oil Cases to Be Dropped.
Columbus, O., Dec. 21.—Attorney General John M. Sheets appeared before the supreme court of Ohio and asked that all the cases brought against the constituent companies of the Standard Oil company in Ohio be dismissed. He stated that he had examined the evidence taken under the action of ex-Attorney General Monnett, and it was his opinion that the evidence was not sufficient to justify the continuance of the prosecution. The court asked the attorney general to prepare such entries as he desired made, and it is generally conceded that the cases will be dropped by the court.
Bryan's Answer to Cleveland.
Lincoln, Neb., Dec. 21.—W. J. Bryan gave out the following last evening on the letter of ex-President Cleveland: "Until Mr. Cleveland sets forth specifically what he considers the first principles of Democracy comment is not necessary. The rank and file of the more necessary themselves in 1896 and in 1900 and will in all probability continue to express themselves on issues as they arise."

CITY BRIEFS

Christmas poultry is cheap.
A storm is coming up the coast from Hatteras.
Tomorrow the air will be sweet with Christmas music.
The repairs to the barge Solace will take about a week.
This is the shoplifter season, as well as that of good cheer.
The ice is now over eight inches thick and of the best quality.
The scholars now have a fortnight's respite from their studies.
The country shoppers were in town in busy throngs on Friday.
New moon on Friday night, and it will be full for New Year's.
Theater parties are being formed to attend Ben Hur in Boston.
The Hi Henry minstrels were in Portland on Friday evening.
This city will send six petit jurors to the January term of supreme court.
The sea has finally given up the last of the Mary A. Brown's dead seaman.
The Woman's Exchange will be open this Saturday evening for Christmas sales.
A meeting of the official board of the Methodist church was held on Friday evening.
The school teachers have been paid off and many of them will leave the city for the holidays.
Union lodge of Rebekahs will install officers and have a supper on the evening of Tuesday, January first.
A lazy liver makes a lazy man. Burdock Blood Purifiers is the natural, never failing remedy for a lazy liver.
The second degree was conferred on forty candidates at the meeting of the O. U. A. M., Thursday evening.
The days will soon begin to grow longer and, according to the old proverb, the cold will become stronger.
Mr. Owen Simmons and Miss Melissa Webber, both of Bath, Me., were married Friday by City Clerk W. H. Moore.
Extra men and teams are being employed by the local express companies to handle the Christmas rush of business.
Echinism in all its forms is promptly and permanently cured by Hood's Sassaaparilla which neutralizes acidity of the blood.

JAMES WOODS IS DEAD.

Was One of Portsmouth's Most Remarkable Men.

One Hundred and Four Years Old on December 9th, Last.

Strong of Mind But Feeble in Body for Many Years.

After reaching the most remarkable age of one hundred and four years, James Woods, our venerable citizen, passed away at his home on Jefferson street between three and four o'clock this morning, the end coming peacefully and without a struggle. His death was hardly expected, although it was noticed on Friday afternoon that the aged gentleman was quite restless, but not suffering to any extent.
At the end, he simply went to sleep. This remarkable man was a native of England, having been born in Chivellstone, Devonshire, and came to this city fifty-three years ago. A tailor by trade, he conducted a store on Market street and was forced to give up his business about twenty years ago on account of approaching feebleness of age. He did not talk a great deal of his advanced age, but his mind seemed to contain happy ideas, so that life seemed far from being a burden to him, even up to a few days ago.
Portsmouth was indeed proud of her oldest representative, who, if he had lived until one week from next Wednesday he would have lived in three centuries, that extraordinary circumstance granted to but very few but which it was hoped that he would enjoy the distinction of attaining.
Mr. Woods is survived by a wife, who is aged 81, and Mrs. Jane Rider, a sister, of thirty, who is 89 years of age. Another sister, Mrs. Grace Chase, 93 years of age, is living in Davenport, Ia. Of the children, Mrs. Perkins, the only daughter, resided with her parents; Charles Woods of this city, who conducted a tailoring establishment on Market square, and the youngest son, Albert Woods, resides in New York city.
Mr. Woods was of retiring disposition and had always enjoyed great respect in the community. According to the wishes of Mr. Woods, his 104th birthday anniversary on Dec. 9 last, was very quietly observed, as he expressed such a desire to his family.
With increased wonder the people of Portsmouth and in fact the people of New Hampshire had anxiously noted the remarkable vitality of the aged man who has passed away.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

Several Questions that the Legislature Will Have to Decide.

The question as to the necessity for a revision of the constitution having been decided in the affirmative by a comparatively large majority, it becomes the duty of the general court to call a convention for that purpose. In performing that duty the legislature will have to decide several questions.

One of these relates to membership of the convention, for, while the constitution provides that the delegates shall be chosen in the same manner and proportioned as the representatives to the general court, and there is, therefore, no question as to towns that are entitled to one or more representatives, there is an uncertainty as to the smaller towns.

The provision above mentioned is the same as it was when many of the smaller towns were classed for the election of representatives under the constitution as it stood prior to 1889. But under the present constitution it becomes a more important question. This is "shall the towns having less than 600 inhabitants elect delegates according to their representation in the present legislature, or the next? Or shall another rule be adopted, which shall render their representation more nearly proportionate to the number of their inhabitants?"

In the coming legislature six towns having less than 200 inhabitants are represented, while five having more than 300 are unrepresented. To give them the same representation in the constitutional convention, it is argued, would be manifestly unfair, and not in accordance with the spirit of the constitution. While the legislature may apportion representatives for ten years in a way that approximates to fairness and equality, it is held that it cannot be done as to delegates to a convention, and it is urged that an amendment relating thereto should be made by the next convention. There are advanced three courses to be adopted:

1. Permit all towns having 300 or more inhabitants to elect a delegate.
2. Let each town having less than 600 inhabitants elect a delegate, such delegates to have a vote proportioned to the number of its inhabitants.
3. Authorize each of said towns to have one delegate.

The first course, it is thought, would approximate a fair representation more nearly than any probable representation for any one legislature. The second course is considered to be absolutely fair and in accordance with the wording and spirit of the constitution, but it is thought it would be found to be confusing if not impracticable.

The third course is generally thought to be the fairest and best. Every voter in every town is interested in the fundamental law and may vote for or against its adoption. Why then, is asked, should not their voice be heard through delegates upon the question to be submitted.

VERDICT THIS AFTERNOON

Coroner's Jury in Sprague Murder Case to Report.

Alleged Murderer to Be Named, and Accessory, Perhaps.

Jury Expected to Come to a Conclusion by 4 o'clock.

(Special to the Herald)

SOUTH BERRICK, Me., Dec. 22.—The coroner's jury on the Sprague murder case has been in session at the office of the selectman here since 9 o'clock this morning and up to 2 o'clock this afternoon, had not rendered a verdict, but it is expected that the jury will be able to report before 4 o'clock.

The session is behind closed doors. A number of witnesses previously examined have appeared before the jury again today. Among those present at the session today are County Attorney W. G. Matthews of Berwick and Deputy Sheriff James H. Miles of Saco and Fred A. Spencer of Berwick. Edwin Nowell, an engineer on the Fitchburg railroad, who is one of the members of the jury and who has removed from the town since the murder, was present on the jury.

There is considerable excitement in the town over the outcome of the jury's decision, for it is understood that the jury will name the alleged murderer and probably an accessory. If they do so, arrests will immediately follow.
